At the 2016 edition of the Indian Art Fair, Grosvenor Gallery is proud to present a solo-booth of new paintings by the renowned artist Senaka Senanayake (b.1951). The works feature a number of Senaka's characteristic subjects; birds, butterflies and rainforest scenes, all executed in his typical vibrant colours.

Senaka Senanayake has had a long and illustrious career, and since his first exhibition in 1959 his paintings have been continually exhibited at art institutions and he has held well over one hundred solo-exhibitions in over 18 countries.

Since returning to Sri Lanka in 1972 he has striven to depict imagery from Buddhist legend, and the natural beauty of the flora and fauna of his home-land.

Internationally his work hangs in The United Nations Building in New York, The White House and National Geographic buildings in Washington DC, the FAO Headquarters in Rome, the International Post office in Berne, The Lodge in Canberra, the National Panasonic Headquarters in Osaka, the Berlin State Museum, as well as in several other art institutions and in innumerable private collections.

In Sri Lanka his paintings adorn the Parliament Buildings, the President's residence and in major public buildings including the Central Bank, The People's Bank, the Bank of Ceylon and in renowned hotels.
